BACKGROUND

India is a growing and Developing country.

Pre- Engineered Building

Pre- Engineered Building industry has established itself in the construction sector and is predominantly used as portal frames and trusses in the Industrial sector for Ware houses, Storage sheds, Indoor Stadiums, Outdoor stadiums with canopies, Gas Stations, Metro stations, Bus Terminals, Parking lots, Primary health Centers, AnganWadi's and many more.... It is also establishing itself in the Building Sector in the following fields, viz., Commercial complexes, Show rooms, Offices, Schools.

It's entry into the Residential building sector is in infant stages.

This conference, while reviewing the established market of PEB, will review the following, viz., usage of Structural Steel in Residential buildings sector, its advantages in using Residential structure, practicability, Limitations, and suggest / establish the cost effective usage of Structural Steel into various types of structures.

PRECAST Concrete Construction

Precast construction is fast catching up in the following fields, viz., Building Sector, Industrial Sector, and Infra structure sector. Segmental Construction of Bridges is already established practice in India and it is growing fast in the Metro cities specially for the Fly overs and Metro rail sector. Precast Construction in Buildings and Industrial sector has just started, and there is a lot of scope for its expansion for the growing demands of the country. Precast is slowly catching up in India, and some of the Developers are embracing it to cut short the time periods of construction, improve the durability of structures, and overcome the shortage of skilled labour availability as against the huge requirement of labour in the construction sector. Few Precast companies from Europe have already put their foot in India by supplying the equipment to various companies in India, from Countries like Italy, Germany, Netherlands, Spain, Finland, and UK.

The city of Hyderabad already has equipment's from Finland, Italy and Spain, and they are already producing elements for the projects under execution. The emphasis of this workshop is to give information about precast construction In building and Industrial sector predominantly, and in addition to the Infra structure. Our FOCUS is to attract the Builders and Developers and give them the information about Precast Industry, Setting up of the Industry, Cost aspects involved in precasting field, Design information to engineers, Planning aspects of precast, etc., Case studies of Precast Projects.

We are looking forward for the various companies across the world to come and display their products in this workshop. We are lining up excellent speakers for the workshop, who are experts from their respective field and also demonstrate the precast concrete products, and Precast construction equipment. We are expecting a very large participation from Architects/construction companies/ Builders/Consulting Engineers/ Govt depts/ building materials companies/ precast and building products companies, Academic and Research experts and experienced professionals from within and abroad for the 2 day event. This is the first of its big two day event across India and we hope to see that precast Industry takes a leap forward with the information that is going to be presented in the PEPSCON 2013 and progress well in the years to come in India.
